1. Claims 1, 2, 3, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bradshaw et al. (6161698). Bradshaw teaches a carrier having a body a helmet attached to the body the helmet configure to extend over the top of the heads of the clubs as claimed. With respect to the limitation "adapted to constrain the golf clubs from moving a a direction along the longitudinal axis. Note that the limitation does not impart any structure over the structure of Bradshaw. Furthermore, by wrapping the cover tightly as shown in Fig. 12, the clubs are constrained in any direction including the longitudinal direction as claimed.

Regarding claim 2, note that the term "portion" is broad. In the very least there is a lower portion being called a shaft portion, and upper portion called the head as claimed. Furthermore, since either portions are planar either having extending portions in both directions including one perpendicular to the golf bag and one parallel to the golf bag.

Regarding claim 3, note the locking mechanism by hooks and loops 60 and 62.

Regarding claim 4, note sleeve 42.

2. Claims 1, 4-6, 7-13, and 16-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rea (3245448). Rea teaches a carrier having a helmet at layer 18, a body with a sleeve at portion 12, and a protective member 26 having two free ends 34 that can overlapped. Note that the term "helmet is broad" and the functional limitation does not impart any structures over the layer 18 in Rea. Furthermore, in the very least, layer 18 can constrain any elongated contents in the longitudinal direction as claimed.

Regarding claim 13, note that each of protective and helmet portion having at least one layer.

3. Claims 1, 3-13, and 15-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Johnson (4951818). Johnson teaches a body a helmet 8A and the zipper at 56A is the locking assembly.

Regarding claim 4, note the sleeve (the liners at 9, 13, 14A) and the protective member formed by portions 36, 35 and these two free ends overlap at the buckle portion.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Salberg et al. (2471169). Salberg teaches a body 11, a helmet 31 with a locking assembly 32, note that the golf bag and the helmet 29 are integral in one piece as shown in Fig. 2.

5. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lickton (6039243). Lickton teaches a golf bag carrier having a body a helmet being the cover 38.

Regarding claim 3, note the locking assembly being the drawstring on top of portion 38.

Regarding claim 4, note the rigid sleeve 34 in fig. 14 and the protective member received within the sleeve in Fig. 4 having two buckle ends for overlapping attachment.

6. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Parks (6446851). Parks teaches a carrier having a carrier having a helmet portion layer 7, having a head portion (at 17) and shaft portion (at 18), and a sleeve (portion 30), a protective member 37 having a first free end at 41 and a second free end (the opposite portion in part 10) for overlapping attachment.

Regarding claim 3, note locking elements 24 and 25 (hook and loop fasteners) on the helmet. The term “adjustable” does not impart any structure over the helmet in Parks.
